Making a Difference:

James Phelps

Out of a need to grow and expand, Black business organizations in Vallejo have joined forces. The Vallejo Black Chamber of Commerce, headed by Matthew Smith and Solano County African American Business Network joined forces last month in an effort to better serve the city's large and growing Black Business community. James Phelps, president of the newly combined organization, and owner of J.P.'s Seafood, 3420 Sonoma Blvd., Vallejo, recently spoke to Sharon R. McGriff about the new organization's purpose and plans. The new name for the organization, which will be affiliated with the national Black Chamber of Commerce, is expected to be announced soon.

Q: Just what is the aim of a combined Black business organization?

A: First, as a combined group we will represent a sense of pride, and by joining together we won't end up duplicating services.

Q: Do you have to be a business owner to join the organization?

A: No, but what we are looking for are people who are potential business owners, or people who want to help. Our membership dues are $100 a year, but I'm interested in every Black business joining up with us.

Q: What are some of the special needs of Black business owners, and do those needs differ greatly from small business owners in general?

A: Financing is one area that is desperately needed. Black businesses need a place to get loans, whether it's a starter loan or a loan to get them through the hard times. In addition, they also need support from the overall community. For example, you don't have to buy a dinner from a Black restaurant, it would help to buy a cold drink. That will help support a business if enough people go in and purchase small items, want support in general.

Q: What are some of the organization's plans?

A: We want to work with the youth in the community, helping to establish programs for them. We also plan to hold seminars, sponsor a Black Expo, and work with Pacific Gas and Electric Company and the East Bay Municipal District regarding business opportunities. Plans are also underway for the promotion of Excel, a telephone subscription service.

Clarence Thomas: Don't Even Think About It!

By. Atty. Antonio Lawson

With President Bush's recent nomination of Clarence Thomas for the Supreme Court seat vacated by Thurgood Marshall, Black leaders and civil rights groups face an interesting dilemma: should they support a Black nominee, although they don't support his views on affirmative action?

Despite his avowed hatred of affirmative action, discrimination class action suits and prospective hiring goals, many Black leaders have taken a wait and see attitude toward Thomas' nomination. Benjamin Hooks, among others, has expressed the view that maybe Clarence Thomas will change once he dons the black robe. The National Urban League, through its president John E. Jacobs, has refused to oppose Thomas stating that his nomination is an example of affirmative action.

Underlying Ben Hooks hope for change and John E. Jacobs' tacit support is the refusal of Black leaders to believe that an African-American man will harm his fellow African-Americans. For those African-Americans leaders and civil rights organizations wavering on whether to support Clarence Thomas, I offer this advice:

Don't Even Think About It!
If Clarence Thomas were white, he'd be a racist: no question. Simply listen to what he believes. He's against affirmative action because he claims it harms African-Americans by stigmatizing any success they achieve. According to Thomas, every person should be judged on his/her own merits and fail or succeed solely on that basis. Nice thought, but get real. This ain't Disneyland, it's America. As an African-American any success you achieve is tainted.

If an African-American succeeds in the business arena it is only because of affirmative action not hard work. Even successful Black athletes must endure the stigma of their success being termed the result of "natural" athletic ability as opposed to the hard work ethic that typifies successful White athletes.

With the current atmosphere of increasing racism and poverty we cannot be concerned about how White America views the success of African-Americans.

As if his views on affirmative action aren't enough to disqualify him, Clarence Thomas also states he is not in favor of class action law suits or remedies in discrimination cases except to those directly harmed by the discrimination. Thomas' views have dangerous implications. Most signifi-

Letter to the Editor:

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate you on your North Bay Progress, the title is so appropriate for us during this period in our lives because we as Black people are making progress every day. I feel so proud to be a part of this progressive group.

Your writers are very good and the articles are easy and interesting to read. One person in particular that I was very happy to see, was the column written by Ann Sandifer, "The Brighter Side." Ann's question and answer has a personal interest to me because I am a genealogist and have been for a few years. I have noticed that more and more Blacks are getting involved with searching for their family roots. All of the beginners, I'm sure, will want to say thanks Ann for your informative and direct answer, getting started in the right direction is not always easy.

Its refreshing to see a column for Blacks and also a progressive paper, today a lot of families and every day issues need to be addressed in a positive and loving way. I hope to see more questions in Ann's column, so that we can be inspired and motivated by the answers and also to continue on with our progress.

Thank you for sharing your dream with us. I want to say to you success with a lot of love and may God continue to bless and smile on you.

cant discrimination suits involve a large class of victims. In addition to providing remedies for those direct victims, courts often order prospective relief. This relief requires increased hiring and/or promoting of minorities to alleviate past discrimination. Clarence Thomas does not favor such a remedy.

Instead, he believes each victim of discrimination should bring an individual law suit for which he/she would obtain a remedy specific to their problem. This remedy should not include any hiring or promotion policies that benefit anyone other than those directly discriminated against. Thomas' misguided view of the world fails for two reasons.

First, without class action suits access to legal representation is significantly limited. From an attorney's perspective, discrimination suits require significant expenditures and research. Such expenditures simply are not feasible when representing a single client whose damages may total $10,000 as opposed to an entire class of persons whose damages may total $10 million.

Secondly, Clarence Thomas fails to recognize we all are victims of discrimination. When an employer engages in discriminatory conduct he not only harms those under his employ, but those who are denied employment opportunities because of the discriminatory practices, as well as their families. Thus, prospective relief in the form of hiring and promotion goals is necessary to remedy past and current discrimination.

Because his views on the progression of African-Americans is so antithetical to reality, Clarence Thomas must be stopped. Potentially, he is more dangerous than any current Supreme Court Justice. As an African-American, he will be used by Bush administration and conservative Whites to support views they could not satte in public for fear of being called racist.

Currently, White conservatives argue against affirmative action claiming that it is reverse discrimination. If Clarence Thomas is confirmed, however, we will see the Supreme Court issue opinions, crafted by Thomas, dismantling affirmative action under the guise of being harmful to African-Americans. Essentially, as the only Black Supreme Court Justice, Clarence Thomas will be the voice of African-America.

Since it is highly unlikely two people of African descent will simultaneously serve on the Supreme Court and equally unlikely that Clarence Thomas will die anytime in the near future, we must oppose his nomination for our prosperity, our children's prosperity and our grandchildren's prosperity.

Attorney Antonio Lawson, a Vallejo High School graduate, is with the Oakland-based law firm Saperstein, Seligman, Mayeda, and Larkin.

Raising money is a time consuming process.

Don't wait until you are desperate for money before trying to raise it.

If the lender or equity investor senses you are in a pinch, they will either demand more in return for their investment or turn you down.

If you have a completed business plan, you should allow at least 3 months to raise equity and 2 months to get your first loan.

If you don't have a business plan, get one!

Smoking Hurts Everyone!

The Minority Coalition for Cancer Prevention is doing its part to educate the African American community on the dangers of second-hand smoke. The coalition is particularly interested in relaying the message that smoking doesn't just hurt the smoker. Smoking hurts everyone. The health of family members, friends, and co-workers is compromised. Exposure to second-hand smoke causes disease even in healthy non-smokers.

Smokers who are not ready to stop can protect their loved ones and friends by creating smoke-free zones. They may choose not to smoke in the car or room where their family and friends are present. For those who are ready to quit, the coalition offers a five week "Stop Smoking with Class" course. The next class begins Aug. 20, at the Norman King Center, 545 Magazine St.

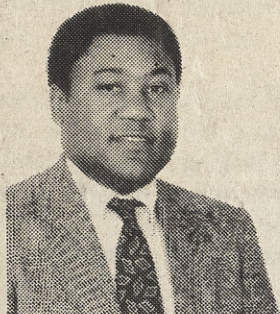

For more information, please call the Minority Coalition for Cancer Prevention at (707) 553-5543.

BOTTOM LINE

Image Maker: Claudia Boswell-Ellis

By Sharon R. McGriff

Image consultant Claudia Boswell-Ellis wasn't satisfied to just help adults pull their images together to go out and tackle the corporate worlds. Her strong belief that a person's image is formed early has added another dimension to her business.

"Children, especially black children, are constantly bombarded with negative stereotypes," Ellis explained. "We need to be aware of some of those negative stereotypes and replace them as much as we can with positive images." Ellis owns the Vallejo-based CW Designs, a firm that specializes in image consulting.

Over the years, Ellis, 29, who works primarily with adults, has veered towards young people, especially teenagers.

It's during these formative years of growth, Ellis says, that young people form either a positive or negative self-image. Before moving to Vallejo, Ellis, who was raised in Seattle, worked closely with teen groups, offering valuable advice on how to dress, talk, and look for a job.

Ellis, who recently completed reading Zig Ziegler's Book, "Raising Positive Kids in a Negative World," says parents play a major role in how children view themselves.

"Parents constantly point out the negatives in their children, but in my home we constantly reinforce what we think is good about them," said the mother of two.

Ellis, who has served as a consultant to corporations involved in hiring young people, says she has come in contact with some young, black college graduates "who don't have a clue to how to get in the door of the corporate world."

"What I find is that many young people believe that they don't have to fit an image to make their way in or up the corporate ladder," she said.

Companies have hired Ellis to talk frankly to young people who have corporate image," she said.

porate potential.

"Some companies may really want to hire a young man or woman for a job, but won't because they don't fit the company or corporate image," she said.

"Companies know the kind of person they are looking for...it's up to that young person looking for a position to know and understand what the company is looking for, as well."

How can positive self-image be reinforced within our youngsters? Ellis offers these tips to parents:

*Watch television with your children. Know the programs they watch to make sure the programming is educational, and wholesome. Counteract negative images by talking to your child.

*Act as an example. Children learn from adults. Make sure your behavior is exemplary.

*Use consistent, constructive discipline when dealing with your children. Make reasonable rules and guidelines and stick to them. Carry out family rules in a loving, firm manner.

"Also let your child know that if they can conceive it, they can achieve it. Let them know everyday that they are important," she said.

Ellis conducts image workshops for young men and women, as well as adults, sponsors Bay Area shopping tours, and offers private consultation.

WOMEN'S CONFERENCE SLATED FOR SEPTEMBER

A one-day women-in-business conference is scheduled for Sept. 14 at the Solano Community College from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The event features seven business people who will talk about running a home-based business, marketing for a small business, critical issues in child-care options, computer basics, and balancing home and work.

STATE BUSINESS COALITION FORMED

A coalition of minority and women-owned firms has been formed by minority and women's advocacy groups, Caltrans, state legislators, the Governor's Office of Community Relations, and major business organizations.

The coalition will assist Caltrans in implementing its MBE/WBE program and place an emphasis on transportation business-related issues. Public agencies awarding public works contracts usually have goals of 15 percent and 5 percent for MBE and WBE, respectively.

EAST BAY WANTS MINORITY BUSINESS

East Bay Municipal Utility District has launched an aggressive campaign to recruit significant participation of Minority and Women-owned Businesses Enterprises on the EB-MUD/Chevron Water Reclamation Project. The project is set for bid in September.

The project is for the construction of a waste water treatment facility in West Contra Costa County estimated at $25 million. EBMUD has established goals of 18 percent participation for minority-owned enterprises and 7 percent for women-owned business enterprises.

Tribute To Mickey Leland

A long admirer of the work of Mickey Leland, the Texas Congressman who died nearly two years ago while on a mission to the drought-ravaged nation of Ethiopia.

Dallas resident and Ethiopian native Yeaharerwork Gashaw is trying to finish the work Leland started.

A humanitarian, international model and actress, Gashaw started towards her goal last summer when she successfully spearheaded an effort to have an orphanage in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Abeba renamed the Mickey Leland Children's Home.

But her work is far from done, says Gashaw, who was the honored guest of African presidents - including those of Zaire, Kenya and Nigeria, as well as Nelson Mandela during the 1990 tour to wage "WAR AGAINST DRUG".

On Aug. 10, Ms. Gashaw will host a fund raiser in Oakland Parc Hotel (former Hyatt Regency) in collaboration with Ethiopian TV Network.

"I want to bring together Africans and African-Americans," says Ms. Gashaw. Funds raised from the event will benefit the Mickey Leland Children's Home and the Ethiopian TV Network, which serves the Ethiopian-American community.

Gashaw says the orphanage named after Leland is in need of a new dormitory and medical clinic. The 250-acre orphanage has been operating since 1985. It has housed nearly 600 children left without parents because of drought, famine and war. Gashaw said that a portion of the funds renamed Fair Oaks Park in North Dallas "Mickey Leland Park" is approved by the city.

"This park will be something our children can be proud of," she adds.

Gashaw is organizing fund raisers in several U.S. cities that have large Ethiopian populations.

Theater, Museums 'round The Bay

Theater season hasn't even opened in the Bay Area, but that hasn't placed a damper on African-American theater groups around the Bay Area.

August is going to be hot when it comes to area productions such as "Telling It Like It 'Tis," a comedy about love. The comedy, scheduled to run from Aug. 1-31, will play at the Black Repertory Group Theater, 3200 Adeline, Berkeley. Tickets are $10. Call (415) 652-2120 for more information.

"That Serious He-Man Ball," a play about three African-American men who, while playing street basketball, work out some of life's problems. This Oakland Ensemble Theater production will play at Laney Community College Theater, 900 Fallon, Oakland. For information, call (415) 763-7774.

Through Aug. 25, view "Secrets, Dialogues, Revelations: The Art of Bettye and Alison Saar." This exhibition in the Great Hall in the Oakland Museum, 1000 Oak Street, Oakland, explores the visual language developed between a mother and daughter. The exhibit is the work Bettye and Alison Saar developed during seven years of working closely together. Admission is free. For information, call (415) 273-3401.

TEEN:Summertime

By Brian Murray and Marcas Grant

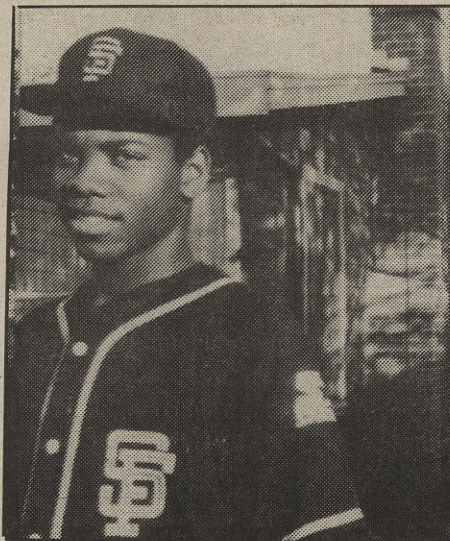

This is the time of the year for kids! It is the only time where kids can really do, say, or wear anything they want. It's a time when kids can wake up when ever they want, and not have to worry about going to school. Yes, it's summertime, when a kid can really be a kid.

Summertime can also be a chance for kids to earn money. Many teens at this time find part-time jobs to keep them busy and boost their income. Other kids keep busy with extra-curricular activities, such as baseball, swimming, and all other sorts of GVRD activities.

In Vallejo, there are still many things to do. You can see all sorts of movies. Have picnics, go fishing, play golf. Another popular summer activity is listening to music. Also, one of the biggest attractions is the Solano County Fair, which comes every year.

Summertime is also a great time for vacations. Some families use this time of the year to get away from their everyday lives. Southern California and Florida are some of the most popular vacation spots this time of the year. That doesn't mean that's where you have to go. Any place can be a great vacation spot as long as you have fun!

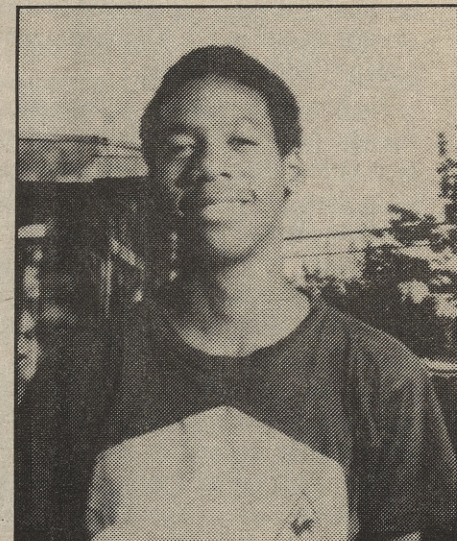

So, that's about it for summertime. As you can see there are plenty of things to keep you occupied this summer, and even more that we didn't talk about. So nobody should be complaining about nothing to do this summer!

TEEN RAP:Did You Have A Good Summer?

Kehemba Murdock, 15, Hogan High School: "It was a nice summer, overall. I went to summer school, and I played on the Allstar Baseball Team. I've been to the movies to see "Terminator II," and "Boyz In The Hood," and I spent time with my family.

Dante Ancheta, 14, Springtowne Junior High. "I had fun, being with my friends. Besides going to the movies with my friends, I also went out of town."

Jemondre James, 15, Hogan High School. "I played baseball and went swimming. It's been a good summer."

CHURCH:

The Meek Shall Eat And Be Satisfied

There are animals that instinctively live and prey on beast of the forest, but there is a time in their lives when they become lacken. Can't we be thankful that God gave us the knowledge, to know if we trust Him, He will supply our every need?

Sensible men will trust God and lean and depend on him for all the ravenous and bitter at all times. The born-again Christian is always meek and humble, he knows the God of his salvation has promised to supply his every need. So he will not fret himself because of evil doers; or obstacles that may get in his path, but will be encouraged to press on toward the mark for the prize of the higher calling in Christ Jesus, continuing to look to him who is the author and finisher of all mans faith.

As essential as food is for physical and moral strength; let us consider how essential Jesus, who said I am the bread of life, is. We need the love of God not just close to us, or around us, but in us. The love of God in an individual makes him a vessel fit to be used. I pray daily that God will help me to be the type and figure of person He is calling for.

Blessed is the man that hunger and thirsts after righteousness, he shall be filled. You need what He has to offer, He is not just physical bread that satisfy your physical hunger, but He is that spiritual bread that satisfy the spiritual hunger; blessed are those that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled. Jesus said unto them, verily, verily I say unto you Moses gave you bread taht was from heaven, because you were in the wilderness and needed physical strength, but my Father giveth the true bread, which is from heaven that giveth life to all who accept. (John 6:32-33).

Similar circumstances were in process at the time, when Jesus had left Judea and had departed into Galilee. I cannot tarry here; but must proceed on my journey to Samaria. I hear that there is a partition existing between the Jews and Samaritians, they have no fellowship with each other. As Jesus arrived in Samaria, there was a woman at Jacob's well to fill her water pots with water; Jesus said to her "may I have a drink of water?" But she being hostile and not knowing who Jesus was, saw him only as a Jew. She said, "this is very strange; did you know the Jews and the Samaritians have no dealings with each other?" "If thou knew the gift of God, and who is that is asking drink of you, you would have gladly given me a drink," Jesus said. "If you would have asked me to give you water, I would have given you that water that would have satisfied your thirst forever. Jesus was so persuasive that she cried

Christian Group Celebrates

The Coalition of Christian Men and Women, under the leadership of Beulah Pough, wishes to thank everyone for their co-operation in presenting our birthday program, last month at the Radisson Inn in San Francisco. Our special guest honoree was the Rev. T.E. Adams, pastor of the Prince of Peace Baptist Church of Vallejo.

Happy birthday all January thru June. Looking forward to the same good time for members born during the months of July thru December.

We praise God for his healing hand along with all our prayers, for bringing Sis. Marie Cooper back to us from the hospital following an operation. She is doing fine.

The Coalition of Christian Men and Women will hold their next meeting in the home of Doris Brown, Aug. 3, at 11 a.m. welcome our new members who recently became a part of the organization.

out "give me that water that I may never thirst again." Jesus said to her, "go call your husband, she said I have no husband, he said, you have said well that you have no husband, but you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not yours.

The woman left Jesus, went up town and was telling all that she came in contact with; come see a man that has told me all things I've ever done.

So we say again "Oh, taste and see how good."
